[Required] Executive Summary of Your Proposal

Please provide a concise overview of the program, activity, or service for which you seek funding.

Remember that the contingency process is for new ideas/initiatives only, all other requests must be made during the Annual Cycle.
This proposal is focused around empowering people, especially our students on campus. We find that many concerns of students transitioning into college life are these on-going paradigms of personal fulfillment and self-worth. As student-engagement facilitators, we work hard to ensure that students are engaged, and maximizing their opportunities and resources on-campus. The challenge is reaching students who don’t readily involve themselves with on-campus activities due to lack of motivation, and feelings questioning self-worth.

We’ve recognized that from a student-perspective, some of the most empowering speakers that have impacted us are figures of popular culture that we can readily identify. The fact that these recognizable figure’s words carry so much weight with students is a strong leveraging point in conveying empowering messages. That’s why we propose to bring renowned poet, speaker, artist, and public figure Lonnie Rashid Lynn, Jr. better known as Common to the UWB campus.

Common is a Hip-hop artist from Chicago who has been using his artistic mediums of Hip-hop and poetry to convey powerful messages of personal-empowerment and self-worth. In May of 2011, Common was invited to the White House by First Lady Michelle Obama to recite a written poem regarding social culture of America. His innate love for words and language, and his gift of poetry allow him a powerful platform of engagement and communication with his audiences.

Common has founded a non-profit organization call the Common Ground Foundation in which he stride to empower underprivileged youth in their transition to higher education. We find his passion in activism with helping diverse and underprivileged youth would resonate with the large number of first generation college students on campus. This event is slated to occur in late February or early March, not date has been finalized at this time. This opportunity offers us a chance to welcome a person into our community who takes pride in giving back to other communities, and inspiring young people to not only chase their dreams, but to give back once they achieve them. The framework of Common’s philanthropy is rooted in working and inspiring the less fortunate, and embedding those groups with the power to achieve their goals. Speaking as a student, I found enormous power in modeling giving to communities. In providing a person of Common’s stature a platform to speak to our community of students, provides evidence of what it looks like to support communities, and give back regardless of where you come from or the path you took to get there. We as social justice organizers in student-affairs stride to provide programs and events that help engage and empower students within our community. A major factor that impacts social justice issues is the process of empowering people, and providing them with a sense of self-worth, and that is exactly what this program is centered around.

[Required] Need for this Program/Service

In 200 words or less, please do the following:

--Describe the need for this program or service.

--If possible, include any data that might support your proposal (i.e. surveys indicating a need for your initiative).

For this program we want to empower students to recognize their self-worth. The concept of this event evolved from a conversation around self-worth, and the complexity of finding one's purpose in their growth process. We find that this is a reoccurring theme for many people within the student-body.

[Required] Estimate number of students that will benefit from your proposed program/service

In 200 words or less, please do the following:

--Indicate what the benefits of your proposed program for students will be.

--Estimate how many currently enrolled students will likely benefit from your proposed service or program.

(400-500)

We intend for this event to be packed to the maximum capacity. Due to both the popularity of the events content in collaboration with the popularity of Common, this event is sure to reach capacity.
