Brief Project Overview

The fourteen express computing stations around campus provide students with immediate access to online information. These stations allow students to get information quickly as they rush between classes, work and home. Sadly, these stations are quite outdated. It is the policy of the UW Bothell Information Systems (IS) department to support computing equipment under warrant; the warranty on the express computing stations, however, has been expired for some time. These stations are running more slowly and having more difficulty with critical updates and new software. In fact, if they are not replaced, it is likely that the express computing workstations will have to be retired during this academic year.

Full description of the project that includes the following sections:

A. The goal of the program or project

This project's goal is to ensure that students continue to have speedy access to online information throughout campus on the express kiosks. This project provides for the replacement of 14 express computer kiosks together with necessary peripherals (monitors, keyboards, etc.).

B. A description of the program and how it will benefit the student body

Students are able to use the kiosks to access critical information quickly and efficiently as they navigate busy daily schedules. Student are able to use the express kiosks to access email, schedule information (course locations, etc.), campus events information, blackboard, and the internet.

C. Specific information about the equipment and/or services being requested

The 14 systems are located in the UW2 commons and in the vistas of UW1. IS recommends replacing these stations with the same systems we are recommending for student labs and faculty staff workstations. By using the same computers for these various applications, we will enhance our ability to troubleshoot and maintain these systems. Our technicians will have a greater familiarity with these computers, we will be able to interchange parts if we encounter problems, and, in the event that we are forced to wait for a long-term warranty repair, we should be able to use other IS support computers as temporary replacements for the express computer workstations. The new computers will also be significantly more powerful and may allow us to support additional software and functionality on these computers.

D. How the project will be implemented and by whom

IS will be responsible for implementing this project.

E. What departments will be involved in the installation and support of this project

IS will absorb the costs involved with implementation and support for this project. This includes system procurement, design, imaging, implementation, deployment, security updates and ongoing support.
