ACCELERATING SOCIAL TRANSFORMATION

A one-week professional development certification course | August 7-12, 2016

Register online: http://tinyurl.com/jjknpdm
This exciting new certificate program will explore the changing dynamics of social investments and provide insights to create the next wave of innovation and progress. The course is geared toward professionals from across the business, foundation, non-profit, and international development community, and is designed to help the participants think broader and deeper by learning from leading organizations and experts on effectively adapting to change and accelerating social transformation.

In this course, you will:

- Understand how a new set of funders and funding instruments such as equity, debt and online, are creating new opportunities for social investments and mobilizing people.
- Explore the evolving intersection of technology, creativity and social impact.
- Determine impact, take risks, and scale projects.
- Design innovative solutions combining technology and policy for maximum impact.

The week includes site visits to the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, PATH, Microsoft, and Global Good to understand how they are managing social development in this changing environment and the continuous evolution of technology and its impact on the poor. This course provides participants with a great opportunity to interact with the rich social innovation network of the Pacific Northwest through shared activities and capacity-building trainings.

Certification Facilitator
The program is curated and facilitated by Dr. Akhtar Badshah, a seasoned executive with over 30 years of experience in international development and a managing a corporate philanthropic program.

Tuition | $3,500 USD includes:

- Programming
- Catered breakfast and lunch for all five days
- Evening reception/s
- Professional development certificate

Learn more on our website:
http://www.uwb.edu/business/executive/accelerating-social-transformation