February is Black History Month, and we want to share resources, and encourage you to celebrate. The concept of Black History Month was created by Dr. Carter G. Woodson, an incredible scholar, activist, author, and historian. He has come to be known as the “Father of Black History” for his efforts to insert and elevate the experiences, histories, and key contributions of Black peoples in American history. HAPPY BIRTHDAY ROSA PARKS!

Rosa Parks was born on Feb. 4, 1913, in Alabama. At age 42, she was working as a seamstress in , and was a prominent member of the NAACP. On Dec. 1, 1955, her activism would catapult her to national fame. On that day, a white man stepped on a Montgomery bus, unable to find a seat in the full white section at the front. The bus driver told the four black people sitting in the first row of the black section to get up to make another white row. Three got up, but Ms. Parks refused to move. Two autobiography, “but that isn’t true. I was not tired physically… No, the only tired I was, was tired of giving in” - Rosa Parks

Montgomery police officers boarded the bus and took Parks into custody. Her arrest led to the Montgomery Bus Boycott and the Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation on public transportation.
