Collegiate DECA at the University of Washington Bothell is an organization which aims to prepare students in all levels and all majors for the professional world. This is obtained through business simulations and competitions which requires students to think analytically, critically and realistic.

DECA is organized by UW Bothell students and is in high demand. Participation at conferences has increased from 45 members last year to 51 active members this year.

In 2012, 15 UW Bothell students reached the national finals, 4 placing in the top 10 within the nation, representing UWB at a national level. In 2012 SAF provided funding to subsidize the costs of attending two conferences.

PARTICIPATION.

- 1) Approximately 51 students will compete this year.
- 2) UWB DECA alumni return to campus biweekly to coach our students.
- 3) UWB DECA students will coach student groups from high schools around western Washington.
- 4) UWB DECA will take the lead in organizing practices with CEO and business professionals as judges.

DECA students are expected to raise 45% of their necessary funding. They will host a fundraising auction and dinner in February. The net proceeds will subsidize on-campus DECA events and the cost of sending 51 students to competitions.

How do you plan to track the effects of this program or service?

For example, how would track how the event/program/service went? How would you track how successful it was and what you could change in the future?

DECA's primary purpose is to help students improve their skill and confidence in analyzing problems and engaging a critical audience. We want to provide as many students as possible the opportunity to participate meaningfully in this learning activity.

We seek wide participation across classes and programs. Through spreadsheets and performance feedback from judges to students, we can assess our success by comparing results from current and previous competition performances. This helps use maintain the effectiveness of the DECA program and adjust as needed.
