UWave Radio is the campus-based community station that cultivates student leadership on the University of Washington Bothell campus. We are a center for community engagement, a hub for underrepresented voices, an environment for professional development, and a catalyst for social justice. As we grow as a station, reaching a larger target audience than ever before, our goals and needs as an organization as expanding as well. As a student-driven radio station, it is our mission to support a safe, creative environment for students to work on their personal and professional development. We want to provide innovative and diverse programming to the UWB campus and wider Bothell community. Our members are dedicated to making digital media accessible to everyone. Towards the end of fall quarter 2013, we successfully applied for a Low Power FM (LPFM) license from the FCC. This would give us FM broadcasting privileges on 104.9 FM within approximately a ten mile radius of our transmitter tower to be established on the UWB campus. This will open up our programming to an even more expanding, diverse group of people.

In addition, the UWave Radio Launch Party will celebrate UWave’s launch date of going FM and our success.

UWave leadership includes another 10 students UWB students, 2 directors for each department (Business, Programming, Promotions and Technology) and Station Managers. In addition to these 60+ students who hosts shows and/or are on the leadership team, UWave has a wider community of UWB students who work along side directors and show hosts to assist with the day to day functions of the station and help out during events as DJ’s, set up crew, take down crew, or event planning, this group includes an additional 15 students. Lastly UWave has a large appeal to students outside of the day-to-day functions of the station, we have a large social media following which includes over 30 Instagram followers, 200 twitter followers, and over 570 Facebook followers. This past spring UWave gained over 540 supporters on our petition to go FM. In addition to this, UWave collaborates with members of other student organizations such as Husky Harold, Clamor, S.E.N.S.E, Resident Hall Association, Club Council, and other student run groups can benefit from the exposure that we can provide for promotion of their activities and events. A campus radio station is an outlet for all students. With an FM station broadcasting to the Bothell community and beyond, listeners outside UWB are also be able to take part in UWave’s unique mission to represent the voice of the student body and its community.

In respect to the LPFM Launch Party specifically we estimate a 300 students to attend. The focus of this event would be to showcase individual student’s talent and UWave Radio’s new channel of communication and the ability to spread student's voices around the campus community with this new channel of LPFM broadcasting in addition to our internet broadcasting.

UWave is a radio station established by students, for students located on UWB campus. This means that we are completely open to the comments and critique of the student body. When we are granted LPFM status, we will also seek feedback on our programming from the Bothell community who tune into our station. Currently, the Promotions Department works to collect information from our listeners, supporters and the students through surveys about what kinds of programming they want to hear on-air. Our Programming Department then responds to those surveys and additional email requests to make a more rounded programming schedule. They regularly assess the breadth and depth of content of the station in order to best serve the student body and the community. Additionally, we are able to review the number of listeners who tune into the station, and analyze the more popular programs, as well as evaluate feedback we receive from these listeners through emails, social networking, direct from our Facebook page and student participation at events. Lastly, because UWave Radio is an academic course in the Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences department at UWB, students receiving credit for their involvement have the opportunity to critically reflect on the progress of the station throughout the quarter, as well as areas that we could improve on.
